Increase your efficiency with instant access to trusted information on Lexis Middle East Law

Expanded laws across the Gulf region

Lexis Middle East Laws now covers all the main public laws across:

UAE Federal plus the laws of all 7 Emirates and key UAE Freezones

Qatar

Saudi Arabia

Oman

Kuwait

All laws are updated following the release of the latest official gazette index or Umm al Qura for KSA.

Work with fully amended legislation

We show you exactly what has been amended and provide you with consolidated versions of laws in English and Arabic. The service includes a wide range of legislation including cabinet and ministerial decisions, decrees, executive council decisions, administrative decisions and implementing regulations.

Understand the laws through our expert commentary and practical guidance

For the first time in the region, Lexis Middle East Law has published a dozen annotated guides to the major UAE codes, including the Civil Code, the Labour Code and the Commercial Companies Code. These respected texts will become the cornerstone of your legal research and are complemented by our practical guidance making sense of the most commonly asked questions across the Middle East and North Africa (MENA) region.

Be the first to hear of legal news and developments through our daily news with personalized email alert service, weekly alert, news service and magazine

Our bilingual editorial team reviews over 300 regional newspapers, magazines and websites (including regulatory bodies and government agencies) on a daily basis to bring you the latest legal news and developments. The home page of the Lexis Middle East Law service lists the latest legal news by country and you can also set up personalised email alerts on specific practice areas. Be the first to hear about new or draft laws in the pipeline.

Find related cases

Thousands of case decisions from the UAE Courts, DIFC Courts and Qatar International Court & Dispute Resolution Centre are listed by topic and linked to relevant legislation. You have the option to 'find related cases' at an individual article level and can also request full court judgments that have not yet been uploaded onto the service. Lexis Middle East Law includes cases from the Dubai Court of Cassation, Abu Dhabi Court of Cassation, DIFC Courts, and QFC Civil and Commercial Court.

Get your hands on the latest official gazettes and laws quickly

With a dedicated research team on the ground in UAE, Oman, Saudi Arabia and Kuwait and strong relationships with all relevant governmental bodies – including the Ministry of Justice – we obtain copies of the latest official gazettes and new laws, and upload English translations within days of official release.

Cut your translation costs

With a dedicated legal translation team based in the UAE and Lebanon, we provide quality English translations. Our partners, SADER Legal Publishers, are the leading Arab legal publisher (established in 1863) and the preferred translators of the Ministry of Justice in the UAE and the Ministry of Justice in Lebanon. SADER holds the largest collection of Arab laws in the Middle East. SADER has a thorough and robust translation process, which ensures both high quality and consistent translations throughout the region. Only Lexis Middle East Law can guarantee its translations are all from one team of translators – giving you confidence in the translations you use on a daily basis.

Call upon a dedicated research team

If you can't find the law or case you are looking for or need to get back to a client quickly, you can use our 'request a document' service, which is free of charge to subscribers. With a dedicated research and translation team in Dubai, Beirut and London – we'll help you find the document you need in Arabic or English. We can often deliver requested documents within 24 – 48 hours, subject to the complexity of the request.
