Subarachnoid hemorrhage —the area between the brain and the skull. It is caused by a rupture of a blood vessel in the brain, leading to bleeding into the space around the brain. Symptoms include severe headache, vomiting, and loss of consciousness. It is a medical emergency and requires immediate treatment.

SAH may occur as a result of a head injury or spontaneously, usually from a ruptured cerebral aneurysm. Risk factors for spontaneous cases include high blood pressure, smoking, family history, alcoholism, and cocaine use. Generally, the diagnosis can be determined by a CT scan of the head if done within six hours of symptom onset. Occasionally, a lumbar puncture is also required. After confirmation further tests are usually performed to determine the underlying cause.
